

FACULTY POSITIONS IN DEVELOPMENTAL SCIENCE
DEPARTMENT OF COGNITIVE SCIENCE
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SAN DIEGO

The Department of Cognitive Science at the University of California at San Diego has two faculty positions for outstanding developmental researchers. The Cognitive Science department at UCSD (<http://www.cogsci.ucsd.edu/>) was the first of its kind in the world, and, as part of an exceptional scientific community, it remains a dominant influence in the field it helped to create. The department is truly interdisciplinary, with a faculty whose interests span anthropology, computer science, human development, linguistics, neuroscience, philosophy, and psychology.

1. Assistant Professor (tenure-track): The department is looking for a top-caliber junior researcher in any area(s) of cognitive science, with a focus on problems of human development. Applicants must have a Ph.D. (or ABD). A broad interdisciplinary perspective will be highly valued. Experience with multiple methodologies is preferred.

2. Associate or Full Professor (with tenure): The department is looking for an outstanding senior researcher in any area(s) of cognitive science, with a focus on problems of human development. The position will also include the Directorship of the UCSD Center for Human Development (<http://chd.ucsd.edu/>). The Center for Human Development is an interdisciplinary research unit with close ties to Cognitive Science, Psychology, and other departments at UCSD. Its principal mission is to foster strong cross-disciplinary approaches to the study of human development, broadly defined. Applicants with a track record of exemplary research with an impact in multiple disciplines are preferred.

Salary for each position will be commensurate with the experience of the successful applicant and based on the UC pay scale. Both positions begin July 1, 2007.

Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. Applicants are invited to provide comments about their leadership activities and contributions to diversity in education and scholarship. The University of California, San Diego is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer with a strong institutional commitment to excellence through diversity. Review of applications will begin January 15, 2007 and will continue until each position is filled.

Candidates should submit, via our online application, a letter of intent describing their background and interests, a current curriculum vita, reprints of up to four representative publications, and a list of at least three references (names, titles, addresses, and email addresses). To apply, see "Faculty Positions" at <http://www.cogsci.ucsd.edu/>.

